Prominent Libertarian To Speak At Luncheon

By Charlie Eisenhood

Friday, 19 June 2009 11:53

David Boaz (pictured), the executive vice president of the libertarian Cato Institute, will be speaking at a Rio Grande Foundation luncheon in Albuquerque next month.

Boaz "has played a key role in the development of the Cato Institute and the libertarian movement" and is a smart, provocative speaker. He made news in New Mexico back in 1999 when he praised former Gov. Gary Johnson for his stance against the "war on drugs."

At the 12 PM luncheon on July 28th, Boaz will be discussing "freedom in crisis," big government, and whether or not America is headed towards European-style socialism. Tickets are $35 and can be purchased here.
