

Hoover Event Draws Crowd Amidst Debt Crisis

July 23rd, 2011 at 12:24 pm  Nicole Glass | 12 Comments |

Despite the apocalyptic debt crisis, Friday's launch of Margaret Hoover's book American Individualism drew a large crowd from the D.C. political scene. The event, held at the Hotel Monaco, was co-sponsored by GOProud.

Margaret Hoover [left] with FrumForum's manager-of the editor, Danielle Crittenden Frum.

Washington Times columnist Eli Lake [left] with John Avlon, senior columnist for Newsweek and the Daily Beast (and Margaret's husband).

Stephen Richer [left] of the Washington Legal Foundation with David Boaz, executive vice-president of the Cato Institute.

Patrick Forest, GOP nominee for Virginia State Senate [right] with campaign manager, Buck Cram.

Margaret Hoover with FrumForum contributor/ Davis-Block LLC associate Jeb Golinkin

Eli Lake, Danielle Crittenden Frum, and Noah Pollak, executive director of the Emergency Committee for Israel.

Stephanie Wayne [left] of the Washington Examiner, and Suhail
Khan [right] director of external affairs for Microsoft.

Ilya Shapiro [left], senior fellow at the Cato Institute with Noa Levanon of the Center for International Studies.

Margaret Hoover with FrumForum Assistant Editor Nicole Glass.

Jeb Golinkin with Mattie B. Carter [middle] student at Mississippi State University, and Gregory Contreras, blogger for Citizens5408.

Margaret Hoover with FrumForum Intern Ajay Ravichandran

FrumForum's managing editor Noah Kristula-Green with [left] Randy Hall, senior staff writer for the Media Research Center. Topics: Book Event, DC Life, Debt Crisis, Margaret Hoover