Joe Biden's Weak Case for Government Meddling

Tue, November, 09, 2010 Cato Institute Dateline: Washington D.C.

Vice President Joe Biden believes that human progress depends almost entirely on government vision and government incentive. Donald J. Boudreaux, Cato Institute adjunct scholar and George Mason University economics professor, details why Biden is wrong both generally and in the specific case touted by Mr. Biden. Produced by Caleb O. Brown. Shot and edited by Evan Banks.
