There is really no better reason to change something than our lack of understanding of how it works in the first place.

end sarcasm. for now..

My insight into how government actually functions came to me after years of observation.

In virtually every single case one can think of, doing something is not the primary goal. Appearing to do something is.

If that doesn't get you rewarded, promoted, or re-elected, then appear to do something else.

Anything can be glossed over and sold to the public on perception.
