

Cafe Hayek

Some Links

by Don Boudreaux on November 4, 2011

It's up! Libertarianism.org Check it out and learn – and be inspired.

Tim Worstall weighs in against the proposed Tobin tax on financial transactions.

John Tamny explains why we should cheer the disappearance of manufacturing jobs.

Really and truly, I would have linked to this superb essay by Sheldon Richman even had he not kindly quoted me in it.

The great George Melloan, writing in today's *Wall Street Journal*, evaluates "Obama's Perplexing Populism."

David Henderson reviews Alexander Field's new book, *A Great Leap Forward: 1930s Depression and U.S. Economic Growth*.

Alan Reynolds explores the claim that there is in America a growing "wealth gap."

Finally, on last-night's *Stossel*, I argued against money-manager Stephen Leeb's insistence that China's growing economy poses a grave danger to Americans.