Posted on November 30, 2010 by Clark Ruper

Register now for the 2011 International Students For Liberty Conference!

Tomorrow (Wednesday, Dec 1) prices will go up by $5 for the ISFLC, and this is not an event you will want to miss!

Not only will John Stossel be taping an episode of the STOSSEL show featuring David Boaz of the Cato Institute and the student attendees at the conference, but the conference will provide multiple tracks to ensure a valuable experience for all attendees. A few examples of the sessions that will be available:

- Libertarianism 101 by the Institute for Humane Studies - For those who want to understand the fundamentals of liberty from a variety of perspectives including public choice theory, political science, literature & art, history, and philosophy.
- Foundation for Economic Education Advanced Topics – Come hear advanced workshops and new papers on Austrian Economics presented by FEE.
- Advanced Policy Sessions by the Cato Institute- Scholars from the Cato Institute will give updates on the hot policy issues and provide students with the intellectual ammunition to fight against bad policies and ideas.
- Young Professionals Track – If you are about to become or already are a young professional fighting for liberty, the ISFLC will have workshops to help advance your career.
- Student For Liberty Leadership Training – Of course, there will be many sessions for students to become more effective leaders of liberty ranging from rhetorical skill workshops to training new leaders on your campus.
- And more to be announced soon!

Currently, registration is only $35 for students and $60 for non-students. That is an extremely good deal for a three day conference featuring such high-quality content plus 6 meals and networking sessions like the Liberty Fair. Do yourself a favor, take a few minutes, and register today. Your future self will thank you for it.

Also make sure to take advantage of the group discount of $5 off for each registrant.
