

- June 2008
- May 2008
- April 2008
- March 2008
- February 2008
- January 2008
- December 2007
- November 2007
- October 2007
- September 2007
- August 2007
- July 2007
- June 2007
- May 2007

• Categories

- Beautiful Whitewater
- Charity and Mercy
- City
- Comment Forum
- Daily Bread
- Economy
- Education
- Eleven Fifty-Nine
- Free Market
- Freedom of Speech
- Government Spending
- Innovation Center/Tech Park
- Laws/Regulations
- Libertarians
- Planning
- Police
- Press
- School District
- Taxes/Taxation
- Twitter
- University

Cato Institute Launches iCATO App

By JOHN ADAMS | December 16, 2010 - 3:00 pm - Posted in Libertarians

iPhone users have access to a new app to display posts and articles from the Cato Institute. Thousands of copies were downloaded within the first day and a half.

Just a few years ago, pundits were proclaiming the end of free markets and the death of libertarianism. It was sure to be a rash and foolish prediction.

Big government Republicans wrecked their party, and Democrats doubled down on policies of that ilk. Through it all, libertarians had reason to be resolute, to stay their course. We had good ideas then, and have them now, that offer hope and opportunity. No sudden political swings of the major parties' efforts could alter that truth.

Via Cato Institute Launches iCATO Built with AppMakr.

This entry was posted on Thursday, December 16th, 2010 at 3:00 PM and is filed under Libertarians. Responses are currently closed, but you can trackback from your own site.

\(no comments yet\)

Comments for this post are closed.

• Search Website

• Welcome

This blog is published from a small town in America's Dairyland.

You may have lived in Whitewater, Wisconsin for years, perhaps your entire life. Despite your affection for this beautiful place, life in our small city leaves you uneasy.