

Beware 'A' rating from Cato Institute

In extolling Minnesota's former governor as a model for Gov. Corbett, Kevin Ferris cites what he considers laudable examples of Tim Pawlenty's fiscal discipline: He faced down not only those awful tax-and-spend Democrats, but unions. Ferris also informs us that Pawlenty was one of only four governors to receive an A rating in the Cato Institute's fiscal report card.

If the Cato Institute gave Pawlenty an A in any category, he is certain to be A-rated by other astute and unbiased commentators such as Glenn Beck, Rush Limbaugh, and the National Rifle Association. Sarah Palin too (unless they bump heads in the Republican primary).

John J. Donohue Jr.

Philadelphia

jjdonoh@aol.com