Muslim terrorists are not the threat

Diane Wood

July 12, 2017

We have no reason to fear Muslim terrorists. There have been no fatal terror attacks in the U.S. by immigrants from the seven Trump-banned Muslim countries since 1975.

However, armed U.S. citizens have murdered 230,000 of their fellow citizens in the U.S. since 9/11. Just last year 188 people were killed on U.S. Soil in mass shootings not involving Muslim extremists. Almost all terrorists are U.S. citizens who feel the need to kill and inject fear into the public.

So why are the president and politicians instilling fear into our citizens about ISIS Muslim terrorists. Why did the Supreme Court allow Trump's Muslim travel ban to go into effect? Terrorists from Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and one each from Lebanon and Egypt conducted the 9/11 attacks on the Twin Towers, yet Trump allows Muslims from all those countries to travel to the U.S. Saudi Arabia funded the terrorists and Osama Bin Laden. Trump needs to educate himself on these issues. Instead he just instills terror and violence.

Yes we need to watch and learn about ISIS extremists, but do not put fear into our public.

The Huffington Post used information from the Cato Institute in publishing the above data.

North Korea is a threat not to just the US but to humanity. James Mattis has said that a result of a nuclear war would be the most catastrophic occurrence in history. It would kill millions. Trump has since said he would handle North Korea himself. This leaves shivers in my spine. Trump is not capable of negotiating, especially with Kim Jong Un.