

Whalen now director of media relations at the Cato Institute

Glenn Minnis

August 8, 2019

Corie Whalen has been named director of media relations for the public policy research think tank Cato Institute.

“If you need a libertarian perspective for anything you’re working on, please reach out and I’ll connect you with the people,” Whalen recently posted on Twitter. “DMs are open, and feel free to email me.”

Whalen is known for having served as a political adviser to some of the top conservative organizations around the country, including as a former political organizer for the presidential campaign of Texas Congressman Ron Paul.

The Simmons College grad is also regarded as one of the founders of the Tea Party movement.

Founded in 1977, the Cato Institute is “dedicated to the principles of individual liberty, limited government, free markets and peace.”