Cato Institute Presents Ellyn Weiss Freedom, Art As the Messenger

April 16, 2019

Ellyn Weiss presents new artwork at the exhibition, Freedom, Art As the Messenger, the inaugural national art show in the Cato Institute's expansive new gallery.

Freedom means something different to every person, yet its value is a common bond between Americans. In these polarized times, Freedom: Art as the Messenger aims to provide a unifying platform of civility and creativity. Artists from across the country—in a wide range of media—share innovative and thought-provoking perspectives on freedom and the enduring need for its protection.

Cato's Institute is located at 1000 Massachusetts Avenue NW. For more information visit the gallery site here.
