

Point that finger inward

January 12, 2021

Governor Kim Reynolds says “stop pointing fingers.”

This is the same governor who recently said she would have supported the suit to overturn the election if invited; the same Governor who waited until the hospitals were full and the doctors, nurses, and medical support people were exhausted before she instituted some weak mask mandates that many businesses don’t enforce; the same Governor who campaigned with and for this openly racist President knowing full well what he was like and blindly endorsed his agenda.

I would like the media to ask her and some of her Republican colleagues if they saw the CAMP AUSCHWITZ shirts some of the Trump and GOP supporting domestic terrorists were wearing. “6MWE, SIX MILLION WASN’T ENOUGH.” Did you see those shirts, governor? Did you and the co-chair of your election campaign, Rep. Steve King, enjoy the show at the Capitol?

You remember Steve King, the white supremacist who supported and voted to overturn the election. This is what the Republican party bought into when they supported this man for President. Seventy-Four MILLION of you voted to re-elect him.

“Stop pointing fingers.” U.S. Senator Joni Ernst is probably the luckiest politician in the country. She got re-elected after Trump bought the farm vote with a check for FIFTY BILLION dollars to the roughly two million farmers in this country. Of course the richest farms and the corporate farms get the biggest slice, it still works out to about $25,000 per farmer.

By the way, that doesn’t take into account the approximately TWENTY-TWO BILLION they got as their regular annual subsidy payout. The CATO institute says, “about 97% of all farm households are wealthier than the median U.S. household income. Farm income was 52% higher than median U.S. household income.”

It is estimated that Trump got 85% of the farm vote. Yet Republicans squealed when Democrats tried to pass stimulus to help people in need. McConnell called it “socialism to rich people.”

“Stop pointing fingers.” How about stop watching FOX News, Newsmax, Qanon, and all these wacko conspiracy websites. Maybe, the governor and Republicans should point that finger inward and say we were wrong and have to fix this.
