

Chattanooga Times Free Press

Tweets of the Week

June 15th, 2013

Stephen Colbert, host of "The Colbert Report"

@StephenAtHome

If you're doing nothing wrong, you have nothing to hide from the giant surveillance apparatus the government's been hiding.

...

Ronan Farrow, former special adviser to Hillary Clinton

@RonanFarrow

"I'm a great listener." -- The US government on a first date.

...

Conor Friedersdorf, staff writer at The Atlantic

@Conor64

It makes no sense to say that the American public demanded a program, the absence of which no one complained about when it was secret.

...

Mark Calabria, director of financial regulation studies at the Cato Institute

@MarkCalabria

If your support for due process is dependent upon the identity of the defendant, then you don't really believe in due process.

...

Grover Norquist, founder and president of Americans for Tax Reform

@GroverNorquist

Raising taxes is what weak and lazy politicians do. Easier than governing, making decisions, prioritizing, learning from mistakes.

...

U.S. Rep. Chuck Fleischmann, R-Tenn.

@RepChuck

The President's idea of a 'recovery' is 4 million fewer private sector jobs than the average post WWII recovery

...

Dave Weigel, political reporter at Slate

@DaveWeigel

Before you ask, yes, Rep. Mark Sanford is scheduled to speak at the Faith and Freedom conference

...

Jim Gaffigan, Comedian

@JimGaffigan

Finally a Superman movie.