Obamageddon today – fueling sequesteria as a disaster of biblical proportions

By Dustin Koellhoffer March 1, 2013

While Obama plays Chicken Little that America's defenses will fall if the sequester cuts are put into effect, Republicans play into his hand to cut the military rather than his trillion dollars of pork.

Today is the day the life as we know it ends in the United States of America. President Obama's sequester cuts go into effect because the eeeevil Republicans would not agree to his increasing deficit spending of a trillion dollars by another $44 billion. Republicans played right into the president's hands of slashing military spending. Obama predicted that a million jobs will be lost due to the sequester cuts, but have nothing to do with his sucking $6 trillion more out of the economy over the last four years.

Making good on his word, Obama released illegal aliens from jail who were slated for deportation for committing crimes. Following exposure of this act, Obama claimed no knowledge of the action and blamed Secretary of Homeland Security Janet Napolitano. Rush Limbaugh described this as the act of a petulant child and that Obama was following in the footsteps of socialist dictators of the past like Castro and Hussein.

Venerated journalist Bob Woodward came under fire from the White House for revealing that the sequester cuts are the product of Obama and was threatened by a senior White House aide. The president denies this and says it is Republican's idea and, according to Woodward, his aide ranted angrily at him for half an hour, then sent an email "apologizing" but saying that Woodward would regret his stance. Obama's press secretary, Jay Carney, said that the aide was very respectful, kinda like Joe Pesci in "Goodfellas" would smile and say he didn't mean it right before he blew your brains out.

Woodward threatened for exposing Obama as author of sequester

Obama and the Democrats in the Senate will vote on March 27 to extend the continuing resolutions that fund the federal government, maintaining their trillion dollar deficit spending without a budget and continue driving the nation on the road to bankruptcy. The National Debt has doubled since Democrats took charge of the economy in 2007 while individual wealth has fallen by 30% over the last four years and twelve million Americans who had jobs under Republican leadership remain unemployed. Economists say all of Obama's predictions of a depression will come true so long as his economic policies remain in place. The president continues to campaign against his policies blaming Republicans at every turn.
