

Trade expert to lecture at LVC

Updated: 01/28/2011 10:49:20 AM EST

Daniel Griswold, director of trade policy studies for the Cato Institute in Washington, D.C., will discuss "The Future of American Workers in a Global Economy" at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Lebanon Valley College's Miller Chapel.

Sponsored by the Department of Business and Economics, the program is presented by the annual Fred Springer Lecture in International Business Management. An informal meet and greet with Griswold is scheduled for 6 p.m. outside Chapel 101.

Griswold is the author of three major studies on globalization, trade and immigration, including "Mad About Trade: Why Main Street America Should Embrace Globalization," according to a news release. He has written articles for major newspapers; appeared on CNBC, C-SPAN, CNN, PBS and Fox News; and testified before House and Senate committees. Before joining the Cato Institute, he served as an editor at the Colorado Springs Gazette and as a congressional press secretary.

He completed a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Wisconsin at Madison and earned an economics diploma and master's degree in politics of the world economy from the London School of Economics, the release states.

The Springer lecture program was endowed by Fred and Margaret Springier in 1987 in honor of the education their daughter, Margaret (Meg) Timings, received while a student at LVC, the release states

Women invited to heart-health presentation

Dr. Deborah Wolbrette and Dr. Soraya Samii of the Penn

State Hershey Heart and Vascular Institute will give a free community presentation called "Women of Today Shaping the Hearts of Tomorrow," at 7 p.m. Feb. 17 at the University Conference Center on the campus of Penn State Milton S. Hershey Medical Center.
