

Vox Populi: ‘We need censorship of the language on TV again.’

Vox Populi

May 30, 2017

“Just would like to thank the Southside Fire Department and all the emergency management companies that responded so quickly and professionally after the tornado touchdown on Wilmington Island. We do appreciate them.”

“Does anybody out there know if Georgia shrimp season is open yet? My mouth is watering for some fresh-caught, local Georgia wild shrimp.” [Editor’s note: The season opens June 1.]

“Would somebody please explain to me what Xfinity is supposed to mean? This Comcast guy keeps talking about Xfinity and is so excited by it. I’m sick and tired of hearing it.”

“I wish I didn’t have to ride the CAT buses because they sure are filthy.”

“We need censorship of the language on TV again. It is ridiculous!”

“And for eight solid years before the election of Donald Trump, it totally revealed the right’s hate.”

“Trump, who denigrated a Gold Star family during his campaign, should be banned for life from the sacred grounds of Arlington National Cemetery. How dare this five-time draft dodger pose and posture at the Grave of the Unknowns, at the hallowed ground where my Navy Korean War hero father-in-law is buried? Where my husband, a Vietnam War helicopter door gunner, will rest one day?”

“In regards to global warming, Mr. David Kyler might want to read a new research paper by Patrick Michaels from the Cato Institute. The data is refreshing and should help people living on the coast relax. Or they could both be wrong and what is or isn’t happening could just be a natural process that we have to adapt to like our ancestors.”

“A suggestion for traffic control to Tybee Island: Instead of having officers sit on the side of the road with engines running, have several of them drive back and forth with the traffic. This will encourage lawful participation in speed limits and awareness.”

“I keep getting pulled over for driving much faster than my cruise control says, then being given warnings when I tell them I was on cruise. I’ve had the dealership check my speedometer twice. Do the police claim you were driving faster than you were just to see if you’ll accept it as fact?”