National Review's John Miller just published this splendid article on my great GMU Econ colleague Walter Williams ^[1].

Here's the Center for Freedom & Prosperity's Dan "Bulldawg" Mitchell in the first in a series of videos on central banking and its alternatives ^[2].

Bill Easterly interviews Deirdre McCloskey on the theme of Deirdre's newest book, Bourgeois Dignity ^[3]. (I'm reading this book closely now; it's packed with phenomenally important insights.)

My GMU Econ colleague Pete Boettke has this very interesting discussion of the popularity of economic ideas. ^[4]

What wonderful news that Paul Rubin is now blogging, at Truth on the Market ^[5]!

Arnold Kling and Paul Krugman are having an argument ^[6]. Arnold wins this one, IMHO.
