

NEW YORK POST

A royal decree

April 14, 2012

“King Andrew shouldn’t be out creating new bureaucracies on his own. If the people’s elected representatives say they don’t want to create a new government bureaucracy, then the government doesn’t have the power to create a new government bureaucracy.” — Michael Cannon, the Cato Institute’s director of health-policy studies, on Gov. Cuomo’s executive order creating a state health-insurance exchange
