...and whether you vote for the Nobel Prize Winner who has launched more cruise missiles and drone strikes than any other, or we choose the lesser of two evils and vote for, you know, the evil of a warmonger party that has learn absolutely nothing from its blunders....

“I can’t name a single Romney foreign policy adviser who believes the Iraq War was a mistake. Two-thirds of the American people do believe the Iraq War was a mistake. So he has willingly chosen to align himself with that one-third of the population right out of the gate,” – Christopher Preble, Cato Institute.

...we will help guarantee that we have more troops to memorialize.

Unless, of course, we vote for, oh, I don’t know, somebody who saw the Iraq War would be a disaster and who thinks the best way to support our troops is to keep them home with their families and not send them to get killed in experimental nation-building wars, followed by being tossed in a land fill, stripped of their benefits by the traitorous swine in the Ruling Class, and abandoned to joblessness and suicide.
