What Wonders Have They Wrought:

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act

At more than 2,500 pages and 500,000 words long, the new health care law - the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act - is the most significant transformation of the American health care system since Medicare and Medicaid.

The law's complexity has created confusion, frustration, false expectations, and conflicts about its coverage and impact. Cato Institute senior fellow Michael D. Tanner will provide an authoritative and deeply revealing explanation of its provisions.

The diagnosis: the law is bad medicine. It is likely to make Americans less healthy, less prosperous, less able to direct their own health care decisions, and places huge burdens on our economy and already massive national debt. Join us to learn more about this law and to find out how lawmakers can minimize its damage and implement more effective reforms.

What: Health Care Forum with Michael Tanner of the Cato Institute
 When: January 20, 2011 5:30 p.m.
 Where: Louisiana State Exhibit Museum, Shreveport, LA
