A couple of months ago, we told you about the Cato Institute's new project, libertarianism.org, a resource that explains and dives into the history of this excellent political philosophy.

They've been doing a series, "Exploring Liberty," which explains various aspects of libertarianism. The first video in the series, hosted by David Boaz, offered an "introduction to libertarian thought." The latest video, a lecture presented by Christopher Preble, explains our philosophy's often misunderstood take on foreign policy and war:
