

Washington MONTHLY

March 05, 2012 1:04 PM

Lunch Buffet

By Ed Kilgore

While the big political feeding-frenzy will occur tomorrow, there's plenty of chum in the water right now:

- * AOL becomes eighth sponsor to pull ads from Rush Limbaugh's show.
 - * Q-pac releases latest poll showing trend towards Mitt (now up 3) in Ohio.
 - * Krugman notes expanded government spending helped fuel recovery during St. Ronald Reagan's first term.
 - * Erick Erickson sides firmly with Kochs against Ed Crane in struggle for control of Cato Institute. Surprise, surprise.
 - * Putin creates "paid flash-mob" of 100,000 in Red Square to celebrate his victory at polls.
 - * Andrew Levison comprehensively compares Rick Santorum's views on church-state relations to Thomas Jefferson's.
- Back in just a few.

Ed Kilgore is a contributing writer to the Washington Monthly. He is is managing editor for The Democratic Strategist, a senior fellow at the Progressive Policy Institute, and a Special Correspondent for The New Republic.