

BREITBART BREITBART TV BIGHOLLYWOOD

ANDREW BREITBART PRESENTS

BIG GOVERNMENT

FEATURING EDITOR IN CHIEF MIKE FLYNN

Search

- Home
- Exclusives
- Categories
- Contributors

1. CONGRESS BAN ON ACORN FUNDING SET TO EXPIRE SATURDAY...

2. ...SEN. GRASSLEY: CONGRESS GIVING 'SEAL OF APPROVAL' TO ACORN

3. YORK: HOW DEMS OUTMANEUVERED GOP ON ACORN

4. MICH. DEMOCRAT: PELOSI 'NOT HAPPY WITH ME' OVER TRYING TO PULL GOV'T FUNDED ABORTION FROM BILL

5. LIEBERMAN: I'LL BLOCK ANY BILL INCLUDING PUBLIC OPTION

6. INTERVIEW: KRAUTHAMMER DISCUSSES OBAMA PRESIDENCY WITH 'DER SPIEGEL'

7. COBURN: WHITE HOUSE WAR ON FOX NEWS BACKFIRING

8. PRAVDA: 'AMERICA MOVING FROM KINGDOM OF CASH TO SOCIALISM'

9. CATO: LIBERTARIANISM ON THE RISE

10. FOX NEWS: $150 MILLION SOLAR FARM ONLY PROVIDES POWER TO 3000 HOMES

11. FEMA CAN'T ACCOUNT FOR $29 BILLION SINCE 2002

12. CNN: TSUNAMI WARNING FUNDS SQUANDERED ON FLAT-SCREENS, VEGAS TRIPS...

13. NEWSWEEK: SOROS LAUNCHES $50M CAMPAIGN TO FIGHT FREE-MARKETS

14. HEMINGWAY: MEDICARE FRAUD PUTS INSURANCE PROFITS IN PERSPECTIVE

ACORN Story Resources

- Baltimore: Exclusive Story | Full Audio | Full Transcript
- DC: Exclusive Story | Full Audio | Full Transcript
- New York: Exclusive Story | Full Audio | Full Transcript
- San Bernardino: Exclusive Story | Full Audio | Full Transcript
- San Diego: Exclusive Story | Full Audio and Transcript, Part I | Full Audio and Transcript, Part II
- Philadelphia: Exclusive Story

Please Donate to ACORN Related Legal Defense Funds

Hannah Giles | James O'Keefe | Breitbart Defense & Discovery Fund

'One Voice Against Socialism' Inspires Movement

by Bob McCarty

Janet Allquist, 68, said she has always been faithful about voting but was never active in politics — until six months ago. That's when she had an epiphany and decided to leave John, her husband of 48 years, for life on the road as a political activist.

Photo: Robert Brenner/BobMcCart.com

Luckily for John, a retired Marine Corps pilot, she didn't go far. Instead, she launched a one-woman protest campaign and became what she called "one voice against socialism" at the intersection of Highways K and N in her hometown of O'Fallon, Mo.

What motivated Allquist, a retired McDonnell-Douglas secretary, to become political? She said it was, and still is, the future of her three children and 11 grandchildren — including one with Autism — whose photos appear like wallpaper on the doors of her side-by-side refrigerator.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Barack Obama, political activism, public option, socialism, Tea Parties

Posted Oct 28th 2009 at 7:30 am in Healthcare, Obama, Tea Party | Comments \(2\)

How the Media Has Failed America on Healthcare Reform—Part II

by Morgen Richmond

In part I of this article, I provided a little background on the history of the public option, including how John Edwards was actually the first to propose it during the Democratic primary campaign. I also demonstrated how the media has largely ignored the glaring inconsistencies between Edwards' characterization of the public option during the campaign, and how Obama has promoted it to the public this year. Edwards quite openly acknowledged that a public option could result in the entire health system gravitating towards a government-run, single payer system. Obama, on the other hand, has flatly denied this is the case saying it's all about "choice and competition".

I also singled out Julie Rovner from NPR as an example of a media health policy expert who has failed to fully (and fairly) report on the public option.

Including the fact that many of its original (and current) proponents believe it could ultimately lead to a single payer system. Instead, Rovner has been a consistent voice of support for the Administration's assertion that this is only a "myth". I asked Rovner to comment on this prior to publishing part I. Here is the relevant excerpt from her response (emphasis mine):

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Barack Obama, government health care, health care reform, health insurance reform, John Edwards
Posted Oct 28th 2009 at 7:04 am in Healthcare, Media Criticism | Comments \(6\)

Obama Presidency: Bullying from the Pulpit

by Chris Berg

There used to be a certain level of decorum incumbent upon the office of the President of the United States. After all, the office is more than the man that occupies it. It's also more than his politics or platform. In many ways the Presidency is the embodiment of America. It's the face we put forward to the world. With the election of President Obama the presidency has also awakened dreams in many children who never believed the White House was attainable.

The mandates of the office dictate how those entrusted with its power should act. The Obama White House has failed to maintain the high standards of this office. Rather than operating in a dignified manner the staff has desecrated the office by resorting to old-school Chicago-style politics. That is to say they've used the Presidency to reward their friends and single out and attack their enemies.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Anita Dunn, Barack Obama, Ben Shapiro, Buffy Wicks, Office of Public Engagement, Chicago Way
Posted Oct 28th 2009 at 6:00 am in Congress, Culture, Featured Story, Media Criticism, Obama, Politics | Comments \(30\)

Wednesday Open Thread: Statue of Liberty Edition

by Publius

Today, in 1886, President Grover Cleveland dedicated the Statue of Liberty:

You know, back when we were hopeful about the future and welcomed immigrants...

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Immigration, State of Liberty

Posted Oct 28th 2009 at 4:30 am in Uncategorized | Comments \(25\)

Avoiding an American Lost Decade

by Anthony Randazzo

In February of this year, I wrote a study (co-authored with Mike Flynn) about the lessons of the Japanese “Lost Decade.” At the end of the 1980s, Japan faced a very similar situation to ours: an asset bubble burst, the economy went into recession, and the financial sector stumbled. In that study we argued (as did others in separate publications) that if American didn’t properly learn the lessons of the Lost Decade, that we too would suffer a similar long night of economic malaise. Unfortunately, the warning has not been heeded.

Japan spent most of the 1990s screwing around with monetary policy, increasing taxes on its citizens, and spending trillions on stimulus projects. Sound familiar? The result was 10-years of stagnant economic growth, out of control unemployment, and national debt rising to double the rate of GDP, all while the rest of the world laughed at the nation that appeared to be returning to empire status. And that is where we are headed.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: banking, Economy, Housing, lost decade, stimulus

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 3:15 pm in Economics, News, Obama, Politics | Comments \(32\)

Rep. Shea-Porter: I Love Alan Grayson and His Moral Compass Is Wonderful to Behold

by Publius

From NowHampshire.com:

Democratic Rep. Carol Shea-Porter (NH-01) is not one to keep silent about a major controversy.

Before she even ran for Congress Shea-Porter was removed by police officers from a George W. Bush town hall and frequently disrupted then-incumbent Jeb Bradley's town halls. She has called this year's conservative town hall protesters "tea-baggers" and refused to apologize when informed about the deliberate sexual connotation of that term. And she harshly criticized Rep. Joe Wilson of South Carolina when he called President Barack Obama a "liar" during a speech to a Joint Session of Congress a few weeks ago.

But Carol Shea-Porter is remaining silent about the increasingly bizarre behavior of her colleague Democratic Rep. Alan Grayson of Florida.

In fact, her most recent comments of record on Mr. Grayson are overwhelmingly positive.

embedded by Embedded Video

YouTube Direkt

"I love both of these men and I will tell you that they are both driven by a moral compass that is just wonderful to behold," said Shea-Porter while appearing with Rep. Grayson on a panel at the Netroots Nation summit in August. "And we share almost all the same kinds of goals and values and Alan and I do as well."

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Ben Bernanke, George W. Bush, Jeb Bradley, Joe Wilson, NetRoots Nation
 Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 2:30 pm in Congress, Culture | Comments \(47\)

Pork Report October 27, 2009: Paying Dead People Edition

by The Pork Report

Medicaid paid for prescriptions written for 1,800 dead patients and 1,200 prescriptions “written” by dead physicians

Medicare paid up to \$92 million for medical services ordered by dead doctors, some of whom had been dead for more than 10 years

Social Security Administration sent out $250 stimulus checks to 10,000 people who are deceased, some of which have been dead for several decades

U.S. Department of Agriculture distributed \$1.1 billion in federal farm aid to the estates or companies of deceased farmers

San Francisco receives federal funding for AIDS patients who died decades ago

Dallas Housing Authority spent federal funds to subsidize housing for 45 deceased clients

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: AIDS funding, Department of Agriculture, federal stimulus, Housing Authority, Medicaid
 Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 1:45 pm in Congress | Comments \(8\)

Climate News Network

by Christopher C. Horner

This is pretty pathetic. CNN commissions a poll to assist with a week’s worth of Senate hearings and one in the House all designed to breathe life into the Senate’s counter to Waxman-Markey cap-and-trade energy rationing legislation. The express point of that scheme is to raise energy prices, which outcome our president has boasted as being to cause electricity (actually, all) energy prices to “necessarily skyrocket”, “bankrupt[ing]” many firms.

The poll, splashed with a pretty clear headline, ran to one question. Er, wait. They’re only pushing one question and its answer. No drilling down provided, though it may have been pursued. The poll actually appears to be at least 16 questions long, though when linking to the pdf for the “full results”, you get one question and answer.

How much editorializing/cheerleading does CNN do about this apparently selective snapshot? Well, the question-and-answer in their entirety total 68 words, which led to CNN providing, ah, context and texture to the public’s voice— to sell the question-and-answer to the public if not to add any meaning or context to the question itself for those responding to the poll — nearly six times as many (390 words plus headline).

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Barbara Boxer, cap-and-trade, climate change, CNN, Ed Markey
 Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 1:15 pm in Environment, Media Criticism | Comments \(22\)

How the Media Has Failed America on Healthcare Reform—Part I

by Morgen Richmond

Most casual followers of politics did not pick up on the debate over healthcare reform until some time this past summer. They mostly ignored the umpteen news conferences held by the President since the spring, but they couldn't miss the broader media coverage of town hall outrage. But for a small number of media experts on health policy, and an only slightly larger number of interested followers, the healthcare debate actually began much earlier. In fact, even prior to this year, when the initial policy formulation and political posturing took place during the Democratic primary campaign.

All three leading Democratic candidates for President – Obama, Clinton, and yes, John Edwards – proposed virtually identical plans for healthcare reform. The only real substantive difference being that the Clinton and Edwards plans included an individual mandate for insurance, whereas Obama's plan did not. (Obama has since come around to supporting this mandate.) But importantly, all the Democratic plans included the creation of a government-run insurance plan to compete with private insurers. What is now called, the “public option”.

Although he was destined to be a marginal candidate, Edwards played an important role in the healthcare debate. He was the first candidate to announce the details of his plan, and really put down a marker for liberal ambition on this issue leading into the election. Especially with the inclusion of the public option. And ultimately the other candidates largely followed his blueprint, even if they failed to credit him for his leadership on this issue.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Barack Obama, Health Affairs, health care reform, health insurance reform, Hillary Clinton
 Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 12:40 pm in Featured Story, Healthcare, Media Criticism | Comments \(16\)

“Cities Are Probably the Greenest Thing That Humans Do.”

by Gregory Conko

A few years ago, environmental guru, Merry Prankster, and Whole Earth Catalog author Stewart Brand caused a minor stir with an article he wrote in the MIT publication, Technology Review. Brand, who was an early advocate of the “back to the land” movement of the 1960s and 1970s, had done some re-thinking, and he concluded that environmentalist opposition to things like urbanization, population growth, biotechnology, and nuclear power generation, was wrong and needed to change.

Now, Brand has written a new book, called Whole Earth Discipline: An Ecopragmatist Manifesto, in which he takes on these environmental shibboleths in a more concerted fashion. On American Public Radio's Marketplace program yesterday, host Kai Ryssdal discussed the new book with Brand. Asked what prompted him to write the book, Brand said that,

“My fellow environmentalists have been wrong about a couple of issues and were getting in the way of important things we should be doing, both with biotechnology and with nuclear technology, and in terms of how we think about cities, and in terms of how I know we’re going to think about geoengineering—that is, direct intervention in the climate.”

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Big Green, biotechnology, environmentalism, frankenfoods, Kai Ryssdal

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 12:30 pm in Culture, Environment | Comments \(17\)

Is Union Priority A Dunn Deal For Obama?

by Bret Jacobson

During the Democratic primary, an arm of the powerful Service Employees International Union pressured Hillary Clinton’s campaign to fire its top strategist because he made a good living fighting unions and their policy priorities. So what will the union do now that a top Obama aid is married to a lawyer who’s tied to a firm advising clients on how to avoid unions?

Anita Dunn, White House Communications Director

The quick back story: In April 2008, Hillary Clinton’s presidential campaign was forced to demote its top strategist in large part because he was advising a campaign to push a free trade agreement with Colombia and operates a firm that fights union campaigns — both taboo for Democrats’ biggest special interest, organized labor.

But check out this twist, courtesy of LaborUnionReport.com. President Obama’s White House Communications Director, Anita Dunn’s husband is partner in a law firm that advises the president and fights union drives:

Ms. Dunn, according to Politico and other web resources, is married to a man named Bob Bauer. Mr. Bauer is a partner and Chair of the Political Law Group of Perkins Coie LLP.

Interestingly, according to the bio on his law firm’s website, Mr. Bauer is Counsel to Obama for America and General Counsel to the Democratic National Committee, and he has been counsel for many years to the Democratic Senatorial and Congressional Campaign Committees. Mr. Bauer is also the President’s personal attorney.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Anita Dunn, Obama, Robert Bauer, SEIU

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 11:59 am in Big Labor | Comments \(27\)

Taking a Crack at ACORN

by Publius

From today's New York Post:

Pointing to a string of probes that ACORN is facing and news reports about the two groups sharing a Nevins Street address in Brooklyn, the suit seeks to flush out the overlap.

Critics of the two groups have long complained they work hand in glove — and have found compelling evidence in Brooklyn.

“Another organization that helped found and remains closely [allied] with the WFP is the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, commonly known as ACORN,” reads a petition filed in the case, charging that “ACORN not only shares office space with the WFP . . . but Bertha Lewis, the executive director of New York ACORN, is also a state co-chair of the WFP.”

The suit goes on to say the WFP “has remained closely” tethered to the group.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: ACORN, ACORN Brooklyn, acorn scandal, Dan Levitan, Working Families Party

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 11:15 am in ACORN, Big Labor, Justice/Legal | Comments \(9\)

What's It All About, Albert?

by Christopher C. Horner

We know why new investment in auto assembly in recent decades has not gone to Michigan but to, say, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky. In short and making no effort to put too a fine point on it, this is to avoid the crushing weight of the collective bargaining agreements that killed American auto manufacturing.

We also know why the unions push “green jobs” so aggressively, despite the overwhelming evidence that the schemes harm employment (that is, reduce the overall work force): as effectively federally mandated (but certainly “federally”—that is, taxpayer) — funded) jobs, they are uniformly de facto or de jure Davis-Bacon or otherwise union jobs.

Read the following excerpt from Sen. James Inhofe’s opening statement in a Senate Environment and Public Works Committee hearing today on that body’s version of cap-and-trade energy rationing, Kerry-Boxer:

“Let me recount a telling moment in [a recent] hearing. Sen. Sessions asked the government witnesses—and they were CBO, EPA, EIA, and CRS—whether anyone disagreed with the finding that the net effect of cap-and-trade would be a reduction in jobs. None did.”

But at least these schemes increase the union labor force. And that’s really what’s important.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: auto industry, Barbara Boxer, cap-and-trade, climate change, CO2 emissions

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 10:41 am in Big Labor, Environment | Comments \(25\)

Solidarity Schmolidarity: Teacher Larry Sand Exposes His Union

by Kyle Olson

When you spend day after day examining the self-serving agenda of the nation's two largest teachers unions, you develop a tendency to think badly of teachers.

That's a mistake. We have to remember that there are millions of great teachers out there, doing their best to help our children develop on a daily basis. We have to remember that many teachers do not subscribe to the left-wing political agendas of their unions, or approve of their tactics.

Larry Sand is a great example. This recently-retired educator from Los Angeles was a member of the NEA-affiliated California Teachers Association. To his credit, he's also a major pain in the backside of the CTA.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: AFT, California Teachers Association, California Teachers Empowerment Network, Larry Sand, left wing

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 9:30 am in Big Labor, Politics, State Politics, education | Comments \(39\)

Exclusive Book Excerpt: "Speech-Less: Tales of a White House Survivor"

by Matt Latimer

THE STORY ANN COULTER SAID SHOULD BE REQUIRED READING FOR EVERY BUREAUCRAT IN WASHINGTON, D.C.

Many of the people mentioned still work at the Department of Defense. They are civil service employees who are almost impossible to fire, demote, or shift to other jobs. In my book, SPEECH-LESS: Tales of a White House Survivor, I show how nameless big government bureaucracies can treat America's heroes.

The Pentagon's press operation was run by a very large staff of civil servants and military personnel. Maybe twenty or thirty public affairs specialists sat among a maze of carrels while the director of the room sat in a glass cage and watched over them. It was reminiscent of a secretarial pool from the 1950s or '60s, without the Smith-Corona typewriters. I sometimes expected to see Lucille Ball walk in with a steno pad looking for Mr. Mooney.

Most of the press officers were probably Democrats, but the problem was not that they were partisans. The problem was that those who wanted to help were given no direction and the rest were mostly inert. Many would come in around 8:30 or 9 and breeze out by 4:59 pm. Nothing would prevent their on-time departure – not some major crisis abroad, not even a war. At night, that giant room was so deserted that tumbleweeds blew by desks. A sizable number of them lacked any sense of urgency or interest in what the administration was doing. One Pentagon reporter compared prying information from them to going on an Easter egg hunt.. Sometimes you'd want to put a mirror under their noses to see if they were breathing.

Forget about their being proactive. They rarely, if ever, came up with an interesting new story to pitch to a reporter. Their job was to wait for the phone to ring and hold morale-building events. There was almost always a party going on with cakes and cookies and people telling jokes and giving each other awards. There was an annual chili cook-off. If ever you needed a sugar fix, you could find something almost any day in the press room....

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Ann Coulter, bureaucracy, Defense Secretary, Don Rumsfeld, Joint Chiefs of Staff

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 8:30 am in Defense, Politics | Comments \(31\)

Anatomy of a Disaster: Newspaper Circulation Drop Accelerates April-Sep

by Publius

From the Associated Press:

Circulation at newspapers shrank at an accelerated pace in the past six months, driven in part by stiff price increases imposed by publishers scrambling to offset rapidly eroding advertising sales.

Average daily circulation at 379 U.S. newspapers plunged 10.6 percent in the April-September period from the same six-month stretch last year, according to figures released Monday by the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

It's the largest drop recorded so far during the past decade's steady decline in paid readership — a span that has coincided with an explosion of online news sources that don't charge readers for access. Many newspapers also have been reducing delivery to far-flung locales and increasing prices to get more money out of their remaining sales.

The latest decline outstripped a 7.1 percent decrease in the October 2008-March 2009 period and a 4.6 percent decline in last year's April-September window.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Big Media, New York Times, newspaper circulation, USA Today, Wall Street Journal
Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 7:30 am in Media Criticism, News | Comments \(48\)

EnvironMENTAL Illness!

by Andrew Marcus

What would be the result if someone walked into a psychiatrist's office and disclosed their belief that the weather is out to get them? Should the doctor be compelled by the state to initiate a competency hearing, or would a prescription for a fist-full of Prozac do?

What if the patient were a cop? Should they lose their badge?

What if the patient were a teacher? Should they lose their classroom?

What if the patient were an entire political movement? Should they lose their credibility and status as an authority on any and all subjects, at least those related to the weather?

At first glance, this 2007 report pulled from the internet archives of the Tides Foundation would appear to be making the claim described above; however, the cause is not so much driven by delusion as it is pathologically fraudulent.

The basic thrust of the publication (a conversation between the Tides Foundation's Catherine Lerza and Redefining Progress' Michel Gelobter) is that the effects of "global warming" are disproportionately felt by disadvantaged minorities.

[Catherine]Lerza: The impacts of global warming highlight social and racial inequalities around the world. It certainly affects poor communities differently. We saw that clearly in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Could you talk about these different impacts of climate change depending on geography, race, and class?

[Michel]Gelobter: Communities of color and low income communities in this country clearly feel the impact of climate change and have been feeling that impact for over 20 years.

My organization, Redefining Progress, has conducted a number of studies on Latinos and climate change and African-Americans and climate change. Different communities bear quite a different vulnerability to the risks of global warming. Six years ago, we already had figured out that the greatest victims of climate change were the lower-income communities and communities of color. You can see it in the disparity in heat deaths in St. Louis. You can see there's an impact on agricultural communities and on border communities and indigenous communities, particularly in the Arctic.

We have to address issues of justice: people have a right to health and to a secure place to live. They have this right whether they're black, or white, or whatever.

This excerpt clears up at least one major misconception: that the devastation wrought by hurricane Katrina was the result of nature mixed with systemic governmental failure at all levels.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: ACORN, ACORN International, Al Gore, Catherine Lerza, climate change

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 6:00 am in ACORN, Environment, Featured Story, Obama, Politics | Comments \(48\)

Tuesday Open Thread: A Time For Choosing

by Publius

Today, in 1964, Ronald Reagan's "A Time For Choosing" speech in support of Presidential candidate Barry Goldwater was broadcast on the nation's airwaves. Just 16 years later, Reagan righted our listing ship. Enjoy...

embedded by Embedded Video

YouTube Direkt

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Barry Goldwater, Ronald Reagan

Posted Oct 27th 2009 at 4:46 am in Uncategorized | Comments \(59\)

Pork Report October 26, 2009: Decorative Street Lights Edition

by The Pork Report

New Jersey spending federal stimulus funds to keep an eye out for graffiti

National Science Foundation researchers study the cure for low approval ratings of members of Congress

"The groundbreaking study ... found that online deliberative forums are likely to sway swing voters in favor of the lawmaker holding the online forum," says taxpayer funded study

Taxpayer funded study claims online town hall meetings increase constituents' approval of politicians and likelihood of voting to re-elect a politician to Congress

Department of Energy will spend $151 million for "radical" research projects, "most of which will probably fail"

Congressman supported at least $44 million in earmarks for companies that did not operate in his home state, nearly all of which donated to his campaign just before or soon after receiving the promise of federal money

House subcommittee plans Honolulu junket to check on stimulus spending

Vinegar producer in Nebraska gets start up funds from the U.S. Department of Agriculture

Boyz Nite Out: Cover band concert underwritten with federal stimulus funds

Indiana city spending $625,000 in federal transportation funds to place 40 decorative street lights

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: congressional junket, Department of Agriculture, Department of Energy, Earmarks, National Science Foundation
Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 3:45 pm in Uncategorized | Comments \(15\)

Community Organizing with Barack, ACORN and SEIU: An Eyewitness Account, Part I

by Jill Stanek

Earlier this month Don Loos wrote about SEIU and ACORN's "corporate campaigns," thinly veiled but apparently legal extortion attempts to get big companies to unionize. Wrote Loos:

SEIU, along with its partners... stage disruptive demonstrations, place derogatory ads, hand out offensive flyers, send defamatory letters, and pressure politicians.... All of these actions are designed to irritate everyone in the community and hopefully focus the unrest on the employer, not SEIU. And, in the end, it's all about money – union dues extracted from workers....

I saw this firsthand in 2004, somewhat from the inside.

I became involved at that time with SEIU, which was trying to keep Advocate Health Care from building another Chicago area hospital in addition to the nine it already owned.

I as a pro-life activist opposed to Advocate's expansion because it committed abortions; SEIU did because Advocate's 25,000 employees weren't unionized. SEIU recognized Advocate as "metropolitan Chicago's leading private provider of health care and its third largest private employer," according to an SEIU flyer – a very big fish. Advocate currently carries the distinction of "one of the top 10 health care systems in the United States."

I met SEIU organizer Joseph Geevarghese at a public hearing held by the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board. I was picketing outside and he was packing the place with Advocate malcontents ready to hog the mic during public testimony. Soon, SEIU would be financially supporting our pro-life efforts.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: ACORN, Advocate hospital, Barack Obama, Chicago hospital protest, community organizing
Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 3:00 pm in ACORN, Big Labor, Culture, Featured Story, Obama, Politics, State Politics | Comments \(52\)

That Unhinged Florida Reporter: Act II

by Mike Flynn

On Friday, we brought you the story of the little reporter who could...corner the market on nuttiness in under 5 sentences. As rants go, it was pretty impressive. What it lacked in eloquence or, even, coherence, it made up in pounds of rage per square inch. (Since the reporter so clearly aligns himself with the Democrat party, the rant does beg the question: Dude, why so angry? "Your side" controls everything in Washington and most states by a wide margin. Given the current state of the GOP, they are the least of your worries.)

These days, uncovering the fact that a reporter has a strong leftist political bias is a 'dog bites man' story. What was surprising, though, is that he felt perfectly comfortable expressing his rage through his work e-mail, in response to an elected official's press release. (He even sent the email in the middle of the afternoon, suggesting that the three-martini lunch is alive and well in the Florida Keys.)

Most editors, one imagines, would typically frown on their journalists displaying such raw partisan anger. The reporter's boss, Tom Tuell, however, isn't like most editors...

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: divisive rhetoric, Free Speech, John Guerra, journalism, Keys Citizen
 Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 1:12 pm in Culture, Media Criticism, Politics | Comments \(49\)

Your Moment of Zen: Al Gore, Balloon Boy

by Bret Jacobson

Ahh, to dream ...

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Al Gore, climate change, global warming
 Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 12:45 pm in Environment, Political Humor | Comments \(43\)

Insider Trading Should be Legal

by Veronique de Rugy

Don Boudreaux of George Mason university had a great article in the Wall Street Journal on Saturday defending insider trading.

“Prohibitions on insider trading prevent the market from adjusting as quickly as possible to changes in the demand for, and supply of, corporate assets. The result is prices that lie.

And when prices lie, market participants are misled into behaving in ways that harm not only themselves but also the economy writ large.

Remember the 1970s-era price ceiling on gasoline? By causing prices at the pump to lie about the scarcity of oil, that price ceiling led Americans to waste untold hours waiting in lines to fuel their cars. Similar wastes occur when corporate assets are mispriced.”

He concludes:

“By allowing companies as they compete for capital to experiment with different ways of dealing with insider trading, we would discover which proscriptions work best for some kinds of firms and which proscriptions work best for other kinds of firms.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Don Boudreaux, insider trading, shareholder value, shareholders, stock manipulation

Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 12:20 pm in Economics, Justice/Legal | Comments \(21\)

Baucus Bill Is a Cure Worse than the Disease

by Gregory Conko

With Democratic support coalescing around Sen. Max Baucus’s (D-Mt.) health care reform proposal, passage of a comprehensive overhaul now appears more likely than ever. Opponents had their summer of protests. But, Democrats have shown a renewed sense of energy since discrediting Sarah Palin’s “death panels” and Sen. Charles Grassley’s claim that ObamaCare would “pull the plug on grandma.” Still, while those charges may have been a little overwrought, there is plenty to be concerned about with the Democratic health reform effort.

As I explain in a new Competitive Enterprise Institute paper, “A Cure Worse than the Disease: Obama Care Won’t Cut Costs, But May Cut Quality,” most of the alleged cost-cutting measures in the Baucus bill merely shift costs from the federal government onto the states or private payers, without affecting long-term health care inflation. The only measures that could reduce the annual rate of growth in health care costs would erect government barriers between patients and their doctors, while jeopardizing long-term medical innovation.

Skeptics have made hay arguing that the so-called Sustainable Growth Rate can’t be counted on to cut \$245-billion in Medicare spending. But Senate Finance Committee negotiators have designed a Medicare Commission—what the White House previously called an Independent Medicare Advisory Commission—to make similar cuts in physician and hospital payment rates in a more opaque way.

In an April New York Times interview, President Obama suggested that such a group, working outside of “normal political channels,” should guide decisions regarding that “huge driver of cost...the chronically ill and those toward the end of their lives.” That’s not exactly a death panel roving the country to pull the plug on innocent grandmas who’ve survived past their sell-by dates, but the effects could be equally pernicious.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Barack Obama, Charles Grassley, Competitive Enterprise Institute, death panels, evidence based medicine
Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 11:00 am in Healthcare, Politics | Comments \(20\)

BREAKING: ACORN Ally Nadler Resists Probe While Giving ACORN Advice

by Matthew Vadum

Washington has long been a place where ethics are flexible. If mainstream media outlets are snoozing, it’s easy to get away with a lot.

The mainstream media has paid very little attention to the ties between Rep. Jerrold Nadler (D-N.Y.), who chairs a House Judiciary subcommittee that might be called upon to investigate ACORN, and Nadler’s close working relationship with ACORN.

Nadler a longtime ACORN ally who has run for Congress on the ticket of ACORN’s political party, the Working Families Party of New York, is now offering advice to ACORN on how it should try to weather the controversies currently embroiling it.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: ACORN, American Spectator, Anita MonCrief, Arthur Z. Schwartz, Barney Frank
Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 9:35 am in ACORN, Politics | Comments \(57\)

The Profitability of Lobbying

by Veronique de Rugy

In a surprising development, the Washington Post discovers that Congressmen make promises of funding in exchange for votes:

“It takes a while for most start-up companies to gain the confidence of a U.S. congressman and the promise of federal funds. But last year, a small Illinois company accomplished its goal in 16 days with the help of Rep. Peter J. Visclosky, a little-known Indiana Democrat who sits on the House committee that funds the Pentagon. [...]

The congressman sponsored or supported at least $44 million in earmarks in fiscal years 2008 and 2009 for more than 15 technology firms that had hired K&L Gates as lobbyists. None of the companies operated in Visclosky’s home state, but nearly all of them donated to Visclosky’s campaign just before or soon after receiving the promise of federal money.”

This is more evidence of the twisted positive sum gain between lobbyists and lawmakers. Sure lawmakers benefit, but that's because they have something very valuable to offer. Lobbying is a very profitable activity. According to this study published in April this year, the $3 billion-a-year industry in Washington secures spectacular returns on investment such as “a single tax break in 2004 earned companies $220 for every dollar they spent on the issue — a 22,000 percent rate of return on their investment.”

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Earmarks, lobbying, Peter Visclosky, tax breaks

Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 8:30 am in Congress, Earmarks, Politics | Comments \(21\)

Kyoto II, the Obama Administration and the Constitution

by Christopher C. Horner

I have one item of suggested reading before passing judgment on the occasionally strident internet-sensation that is the commentary by Lord Monckton on the draft negotiating text for an anticipated U.S. signature in December — certain to be delayed, to July — on a successor to the Kyoto Protocol (discussed with Monckton on BreitbartTV here). That instrument is of course the “global treaty” assigning economically damaging responsibilities to 35 industrialized countries (the titans Iceland, Luxembourg, Slovenia, Slovakia...) but not 155 others (such as tiny China, India, Mexico, South Korea, Brazil, Indonesia...).

Click to view larger printer friendly version of cartoon

The reason I suggest this is because one of the more hot-button items Monckton raises, the Kyotophile desire to get around at least half of the allegedly out-dated concept of Article II “advice and consent”, has, despite certain parties insisting that Monckton’s commentary offers nothing of interest...move along now... for more than a year been telegraphed by Obamaphile activists. It was even alluded to in a paper by someone who now carries the title of our nation’s “Climate Envoy” (really). And now the Obama administration is reported to have briefed European diplomats to be ready to accommodate certain delays and procedures that this would require.

First, allow me to note one particular, relevant specific on which I differ with Lord Monckton’s assessment. That is the notion that the administration would just adopt Kyoto through domestic legislation. He may just be short-handing it here, which if so, I understand, but it is important to get the specifics on the record. It is of course the point of the Waxman-Markey and Kerry-Boxer cap-and-trade bills to adopt Kyoto’s principal obligation of carbon dioxide emission reduction, though these bills’ only international components are direct and indirect wealth transfers of a few billion dollars a year to other countries. There are no substantive sovereignty implications, outside of certain energy security concerns.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: Al Gore, cap-and-trade, carbon emissions, climate change, Copenhagen

Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 7:30 am in Environment, Justice/Legal, Politics | Comments \(17\)

‘Cool Cars’ Guaranteed To Make You Hot Under The Collar

by Bob Barr

I admit it. I like electronic gizmos. When I’m not driving (and even sometimes when I am), my BlackBerry is never more than an index finger away. In the car, I can’t go a mile without scanning for an Old Gold hit that takes me back to the “Good Old Days” on my Sirius-XM satellite radio system. I use my GPS system a lot (though less often than my wife would like me to, but I’m a man and I hate to admit I don’t know where I’m going). I pay for all these gadgets, and woe be unto the person who tries to take them from me.

The California Air Resources Board (“CARB” to those folks who love acronyms) is considering regulations that would cause serious disruptions to electronic devices being transmitted from a vehicle, and for devices in the vehicle trying to receive electronic signals. The regulations that would do this are included in a program cleverly called “Cool Cars,” which would require all cars sold in the Golden State starting in 2012 to have their windows coated with a metal-oxide based glazing. It is this process that would wreck havoc with electronic devices in those vehicles.

All this is the result of California’s fixation with so-called “global warming” and the state’s obsession with attempting to reduce carbon emissions. Obviously, these folks at CARB haven’t seen the scientific evidence that carbon dioxide makes up at most 4% of the entire “greenhouse gas” layer in our atmosphere; and of that 4%, all of mankind’s activities (yes, including operating internal combustion engines) accounts for only about three or four percent. This means that mankind is guilty of producing only between .12 and .16 percent of greenhouse gasses. Not the dire emergency the greenies would have us believe it to be; but then again, why let scientific facts serve as a speed bump on the way to the complete Nanny State.

\(more...\)

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: California Air Resources Board, carbon emissions, climate change, cool cars, global warming

Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 6:03 am in Environment, Featured Story, Politics, State Politics | Comments \(47\)

Monday Open Thread: Pandemic Edition

by Publius

So, we have a national emergency now:

Email this to a friend | Print | Share on Facebook | Tweet this | ADD THIS

Tags: flu season, H1N1, Influenza, pandemic

Posted Oct 26th 2009 at 4:30 am in Uncategorized | Comments \(70\)

« Older Entries

Featured Story

Obama Presidency: Bullying from the Pulpit

by Chris Berg There used to be a certain level of decorum incumbent upon the office of the President of the United States. After all, the office is more than the man that occupies it. It's also more than his politics or platform. In many ways the Presidency is the embodiment of...

Read more...

More Featured Stories...

GET CASHBACK
ON YOUR PURCHASES.

bing digital cameras

 bing.com

 Follow Us on Twitter

 Subscribe via RSS

 Got a Tip?
Contact us

Live Talk on Twitter

What's being said about

Big Government

WakeUp_USA Solidarity Schmolodarity:
Teacher Larry Sand Exposes His Union -
<http://bit.ly/iEsdS> @biggovt
21 hours ago

PolitixGal Barney Franks -- We are trying on every front to increase the role of govt.
<http://bit.ly/4Axryl> #socialism
#biggovernment #tcot #tlot #sgp
21 hours ago

PolitixGal Communism alive and well in Chicago -- City to Pay for Informing on tax cheats. <http://bit.ly/44zNzC> #stalinism
#socialism #biggovernment
21 hours ago

johnnyA99 What's It All About, Albert?
<http://bit.ly/1gJD2a> via @biggovt
20 hours ago

lilly Lieberman & Snowe against the opt out public option (thank goodness) & we don't want trigger either! @biggovt #tcot #sgp
#teaparty #liberty
20 hours ago

lilly @scrowder c for c destruction of good cars that could have helped the poor get to work - oh, forgot no jobs available @biggovt
#tcot #sgp
20 hours ago

lilly @scrowder i think this prez only knows how to waste money- to what end? so we twitter

Join the conversation

Categories

- ACORN
- Big Labor
- Congress
- Culture
- Defense
- Earmarks
- Economics
- education
- Environment
- Exclusives
- Featured Story
- Healthcare
- History
- Justice/Legal
- Media Criticism
- News
- Obama
- Political Humor
- Politics
- Pork Report
- State Politics

- Tax Reform
- Tea Party
- Uncategorized

Blogroll

- Big Hollywood
- Breitbart.tv

Terms & Conditions Privacy Policy Login