posted by Staff on Dec 29, 2010

The Executive Vice President of the Cato Institute recently wrote a piece for POLITICO magazine's debate forum. In his writing, David Boaz asserts that some of Obama's recent December victories have reflected libertarian values.

Including Don't Ask, Don't Tell and the federal pay freeze, these measures have echoed the libertarian goals of less government and more freedom. While the president is far from being a libertarian, Boaz claims, Obama has done more to please libertarians in the month of December than he has during all his prior time in office.

The Libertarian Party is America's third largest political party, founded in 1971. Our vision is for a world in which all individuals can freely exercise the natural right of sole dominion over their own lives, liberty and property by building a political party that elects Libertarians to public office, and moving public policy in a libertarian direction.
