

The Volokh Conspiracy

- Home
- About
- E-Mail Policy
- Linking Policy
- Stuff
- Who Are We?
- Search
- Subscribe
- Twitter
- RSS
- Blogroll
- Archives

Cato Program, “Did Lack of Consumer Protection Cause the Crisis?”

Todd Zywicki • March 15, 2010 11:42 am

I’ll be participating in a program tomorrow at noon at the Cato Institute on the question, “Did Lack of Consumer Protection Cause the Crisis?” Info is here. Participants include Janis Bowdler, National Council of La Raza; Thomas Durkin, Former Economist, Federal Reserve Board; Ed Mierzwinski, U.S. PIRG; and myself. Moderated by Mark A. Calabria, Director, Financial Regulation Studies, Cato Institute.

Categories: Uncategorized

15 Comments

1.

LarryA says:

Did Lack of Consumer Protection Cause the Crisis?

Absolutely. Consumers could not protect themselves from the government programs designed to “protect” them.

Quote

March 15, 2010, 2:17 pm

2.