Today's headline roundup covers the global financial crisis and its causes, Apple's meteoric rise, what could be President Obama's very own "Watergate scandal" and sliding poll numbers, and allegations of fraud against the TSA, after a woman lost a $24,000 watch at a government security checkpoint in an airport.

- Financial Crisis: Is Europe heading for a meltdown? This financial crisis is worse than the sub-prime crash of 2008 because the sums are so much bigger and it is governments that are in dire straits. Edmund Conway explains the dangers.

- Danger! US money supply plunges at 1930s pace as Obama eyes fresh stimulus. Stuck between hyperinflation and economic contraction, what is a Keynesian government to do?

- Tech: Apple overtakes Microsoft as biggest tech company
- Scandal: Joe Sestak is lying or he's protecting a felon in Barack Obama's White House. So which is it?
- Obama's Watergate? "An e-mail from Rep. Darrell Issa's (R-Calif.) campaign suggested Wednesday that the controversy over Rep. Joe Sestak's (D-Pa.) alleged administration job offer could be President Barack Obama's Watergate scandal."
- Unpopular: Obama's numbers continue to slide. (And so do Elena Kagan's.)
- Stop evading! All 7 Republicans on Senate Judiciary Committee Ask AG Holder to Appoint Special Prosecutor to Look Into Alleged Sestak Job Offer
