Whether you are for or against the new health care reform legislation, a lot of people are still trying to make sense of what the law will mean to them.

The New York Times posted a helpful blog Tuesday with links to Web sites that will begin answering some of your questions.

For instance, The Cato Institute provides analysis of health care issues from a right-leaning perspective, while the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities provides analysis from a left-leaning perspective.

Both sites are linked to on the Time's Prescriptions blog along with dozens of other links from government and consumer groups — from both sides of the aisle.
