John B. Marshall Jr.

Marshall, John B. Jr. died in Sun City, Arizona after a brief illness. He was a Marine Corps fighter pilot who served in World War II and the Korean War. After leaving the service with rank of Captain, he founded and operated the High Fidelity Showroom, Cyrano's Restaurant and Restaurant de Bergerac. He was also active in the promotion of individual liberty and free market philosophy. During the 1960's, he hosted a monthly lecture group on Ayn Rand's objectivist philosophy, and he was a long-time board member with The Discussion Club of St. Louis. He is survived by his companion Rosalie Rosenblum of Sun City, AZ.; son Joseph Marshall of Chesterfield, MO, daughter Mary Garland of Fairfax, VA, grandson John Marshall and granddaughter Elisabeth Marshall. Services: A private burial will be in North Carolina. Donations may be made to The Foundation for Economic Education www.fee.org, or The Cato Institute www.cato.org.
