

<http://reason.com/blog/2010/07/27/reasontv-where-do-libertarians>

Reason.tv: Where Do Libertarians Belong? A Reason Event featuring Brink Lindsey, Jonah Goldberg and Matt Kibbe

July 27, 2010

Should libertarians forge alliances and risk being compromised, or preserve their purity and risk irrelevance? Which political groups are worth rooting for, collaborating with, or just sprinting away from?

On July 12, 2010, Reason hosted a debate on "Where Libertarians Belong" with Cato Institute Vice President Brink Lindsey, FreedomWorks President Matt Kibbe, and Jonah Goldberg of National Review Online and the American Enterprise Institute.

The event was based on Reason's August/September cover forum (click here to subscribe), in which Lindsey argued for the abolition of the historical right-libertarian alliance in "Right Is Wrong," Goldberg warned against the lure of "The Non-Existent Center," and Kibbe defended the Tea Parties in "Drink Your Tea."

Approximately 50 minutes. Shot by Dan Hayes, Jim Epstein, and Josh Swain. Edited by Jim Epstein.

Go to Reason.tv for downloadable versions and subscribe to Reason.tv's YouTube channel to receive automatic notification when new material goes live.