July 8, 2010 -- Last night, reality set in for the jail bound Lindsay Lohan who went on a Twitter.com rant.

Her fingers were flying as LiLo found the 140 word limit of a tweet to be far too little for this troubled star to dissect the US justice system. Lindsay wrote on her account:

'It is clearly stated in Article 5 of the U.N. Universal Declaration of Human Rights that....

'No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.'" this was taken from an article by Erik Luna..

'November 1 marked the 15th anniversary of the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines. But there were no celebrations, parades, or other festivities in honor of this punishment scheme created by Congress and the U.S. Sentencing Commission....

'Instead, the day passed like most others during the last 15 years:Scores of federal defendants sentenced under a constitutionally perverted

'system that saps moral judgment through its mechanical rules.'

It's a tough world for this 24-year old right now as the Lindsay Lohan Twitter.com rant suggested. But with LiLo facing jail and then a stint in rehab, perhaps her tweets will become a bit more even-keeled, and her life even more so.

Lindsay Lohan goes on Twitter.com rant. Will LiLo have computer access in jail?
