

Zeoli: Let School Students Have Their Snow Day!

February 1, 2021

Today on the Zeoli Show, it's just the 2nd major snowstorm of the year in the area and schools are still open virtually! Students have been through the ringer this year with virtual learning, we can give them a snow day like we all did when we were in school. The teachers deserve the break too.

Listen to the full show below:

In today's hour of non-stop talk, Reddit users are not letting up in their holding and trading of stocks like Gamestop and AMC theaters as hedge fund managers scramble to find ways to stop them. Including brokerage companies stopping trading on specific companies that harm the big guys. People have had it with big brother stomping out the little guy for their own advantages. Even Curt Schilling is tired of the Baseball Hall of Fame shortchanging him in electing him to the Hall of Fame.

Paul Matzko, editor for technology and innovation at the CATO institute, joined to discuss the murky history of the fairness doctrine for broadcasting and how it started the conservative talk radio movement to what it has become today. He also spoke on the potential return of the fairness doctrine to the media, mainly on radio and network television.