First ... My Atlanta listeners and readers might want to read this report from the Atlanta Journal-Constitution about the Atlanta government schools. Apparently the Atlanta schools have been inflating their graduation rates by fudging the numbers. When a kid drops out of school and they can't figure out where the kid went ... they just say he transferred to another school. When the numbers get straightened out the Atlanta government schools liik just as bad as they always have.

Here's another government schools goodie. In DeKalb County, Georgia you have principals writing books ... and then buying them for their schools with taxpayer money.
