

- Home
- About TMV's Authors
- Comments Policy
- Contact Us
- Mission Statement

TheModerate Voice

An Internet hub for moderates, centrists, and independents, with domestic and international news, analysis, original reporting, and popular features from the left, center, and right

« Extra! Extra! Now Read This

The Real Time Web Explained... »

More Victims of America's War on Drugs

Posted by NICK RIVERA in At TMV.
Sep 22nd, 2009 | Comments

Reason Magazine reminds us that nonviolent users of illegal drugs aren't the only victims of America's War on (some) Drugs. A number of physicians and patients suffering from incurable neurogenic diseases have been sent to prison all because your congressmen and congresswoman insist that they (and not physicians) should be making decisions about prescribing pain medications.

Thanks to Radley Balko over at The Agitator for the link. For more information on this issue, please visit Radley's Pain Treatment archives as well as the Cato Institute's report on the subject.

ShareThis