

Join the Debate

May. 14, 2010

Driving the Conversation:

Arena Ref: Fred Barbash

Are tea partiers the new John Birchers?

Should the two populist conservative movements, a half-century apart, be mentioned in the same breath?

Share this

Print

Email

Roger Pilon

Vice President for Legal Affairs, Cato Institute :

This is absurd. An obscure assistant professor teaching in a middling university writes an opinion piece comparing the Tea Party movement to the John Birch Society -- indeed, even to the Ku Klux Klan -- and POLITICO Arena asks us to take it seriously for comment?! Res ipsa loquitur: The several recent elections speak more loudly than this professor ever will. Back to adult fare.

Subject

Arizona: Pariah state or mainstream?

Date

May. 13, 2010

Worse than 1994? Elena Kagan: Andrew Sullivan's new Palin/Trig-

May. 12, 2010

type obsession?

Will gentle Ben play rough? Kagan's 'real world' cred Primary night fights

May. 11, 2010

Wrath of the angry left

May. 10, 2010

Open Mike May 8-9

May. 08, 2010

Is Obama's America like Greece?

May. 07, 2010

All the news that doesn't fit? For GOP, is imitation the sincerest form of flattery? Immigration crackdown in Pennsylvania?

May. 06, 2010

© 2010 Capitol News Company LLC

Please read our Privacy Policy. By using this site, you accept our Terms of Service.