BOORTZ

"When plunder becomes a way of life for a group of men living together in society, they create for themselves in the course of time a legal system that authorizes it and a moral code that justifies it."

Frederic Bastiat

The Brits seem to think that The Chosen One is in crash and burn mode. This from the British press: The stunning decline of Barack Obama: 10 key reasons why the Obama presidency is in meltdown.

Government workers earn TWICE as much as their private sector counterparts. I suppose this is what you should expect in a country where the private sector has become a support mechanism for government.

The Conspiracy Against Economic Growth: Our political and media elites (ObamaZombies) want a bigger, more intrusive, and more expensive government, and they want a Value Added Tax (VAT) to pay for it.

In this summer of unrecovey, it's important to understand how so many smart people got so much so wrong ...

A DC reporter is suspended for reporting facts about BP's campaign contributions to Barack Obama. He must have missed the ObamaZombie memo.

More and more pundits are comparing the upcoming elections in 2010 to the Republican Revolution of 1994.

Unfortunately we know how that turned out .. let's hope the Republicans don't mess it up this time.

I mentioned this on the air, but here are Marco Rubio's thoughts on Harry Reid's comment on conservative Hispanics.

According to the latest Rasmussen polls, 57% of likely voters describe the Congressional Democrat agenda as "extreme."

Victor Davis Hanson asked an interesting question .. is everyone a bigot? It sure seems to feel that way in this PC-dominated society.

This is a new one .. a Democrat Congressman believes that the Obama administration is too focused on Wall Street rather than Main Street. Isn't that line only reserved for the Republicans?

Here's an informative article which explains a plan to reform Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac so as to aid homebuyers and protect the taxpayers.

Or there is this approach to Fannie and Freddie ... it's time to say goodbye for good.

Apparently John Stossel is growing tired of Alan Greenspan. Here's why.

It's one thing for teachers to get fired because of budget cuts. It's another if those teachers are fired simply because enrollment is down and there aren't as many students to teach. Amazing when you know the whole story, isn't it?

Is the Obama administration planning to seize Western land without Congressional approval? Rep. Rob Bishop of Utah seems to think so, based on documents uncovered by the Interior Department.

Wow, look how Obama's tax plan really sticks it to producers.

What others are saying

Tea party and the Brits

I thought it was the Tea Party line that we didn't care what the rest of the world thought when they were upset with Bush.

But let someone say something unfavorable about Barack Obama and suddenly they are to be heeded.

The article itself is bogus as several of the points clearly demonstrate.

1. Obama is not out of touch with the American people.
 2. Most Americans do have confidence in Obama's leadership, at least as much as any president.
 3. Obama does not fail to inspire.
 4. The US was drowning in debt before Obama came along.
- 5,6,7,8,and 9 are typical conservative garbage but the one that irritates me the most is number 10 where it claims Obama doesn't beleive in American greatness.

Beleiving in your country's greatness does not mean ignoring the country's mistakes or shortcomings. Actually acknowledging them makes the country greater than just going around as if the country is perfect and has never made a mistake. The position this author (and the Tea party) would have us take is sheer arrogance.
