Advice For The Tea Party

... from a guy who is bona fide. The CATO Institute's John Samples lays out some sound advice:

1. Republicans aren't always your friends.
2. Some tea partiers like big government.
3. Democrats aren't always your enemies.
4. Smaller government demands restraint abroad.
5. Leave social issues to the states.

Check it out:

The question remains, will Tea Partiers listen?

This space is designed for thoughtful commentary on politics and media (and whatever else comes to mind). The Pajama Pundit welcomes people from all political stripes to voice opinions freely and without fear of mean-spirited attacks. He does however expect intelligent discussion -- and some understanding of proper grammar usage.

Please review the Comment Policy.

Please refrain from personal attacks on authors or other users. Back up your argument with documentation (links to elsewhere on the web). This is a big sandbox -- so please play nicely with one another.

NOTE: For all of the HTML nerds out there (like me), [a] (hyperlink), [strong] (bold) and [em] (italic) tags work. There are probably others as well...
