

David Jolly Calls for Tackling the National Debt

Kevin Derby
September 15, 2015

Running to replace U.S. Sen. Marco Rubio, R-Fla., in 2016, U.S. Rep. David Jolly, R-Fla., pointed to a report from Cato Institute which showed the federal debt now stands at $107,000 per household.

“The go-along, get-along, look-the-other-way Washington crowd needs to wake up,” Jolly said on Tuesday. “Our nation is drowning in a sea of red ink. It’s immoral and unworthy of America. Empty rhetoric and false promises are not going to shed a single dollar from a debt that constitutes the greatest threat to our national security.”

Jolly stressed his own efforts to get America’s financial house in order including backing the Balanced Budget Amendment.

“The American people demand and deserve results,” Jolly said.