

Now Playing

Andy Thayer Argues in Favor of

The Cato Institute's new CEO John Allison Advocates a Free Market Solution, but Struggles to Address Institutional Racism

No comments

The AMP's Blog

The Cato Institute, a libertarian think tank, has had a tumultuous year following the death of original shareholder William Niskanen. Emerging from a lawsuit filed by founding members David and Charles Koch, the Institute's new CEO, John A. Allison joined the AMP hosts Brian Babylon and Molly Adams by phone to discuss the Institute's direction in the coming years and his recommended economic policies that he lays out in his new book, The Financial Crisis and the Free Market Cure. We even had a couple of our listeners join in on the conversation with questions.